

Power surge hits PNG

According to a report by the ABC Online news service electrical surges have destroyed hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of appliances and equipment near Papua New Guinea's capital Port Moresby. According to the news report surge protectors were not enough to save businesses, homes and schools from several electrical surges around Sogeri, outside Port Moresby, over the weekend. Electricity provider PNG Power has not commented publicly on the cause of the surge.

Source: ESAA NEWS, Issue 18, 9 May 2011