

Gender in Energy

A component of the Sustainable Energy Industry Development Project addresses gender in the electricity supply industry. The PPA will join PIC university career fairs to encourage both female and male high school students to study engineering and other energy-related majors at universities, and will provide internship opportunities for them.

The project will also include mainstreaming gender into the capacity building activities as well as make available on its website publications on gender and energy.